

recognized for his studies on characterizing the pathways of production of the amyloid protein from

1,800 people aged 90 years and older.